The Lend Ore Question

ead ore controversy, but such impairs as what told the analysis of the training made by a Republican treasury official in 1881, and by a Democrat in 1885, orest containing both lead and allver are classed at the custom house according to the metal of chief value contained in them. Sliver is admitted free of duty, while on Siver is admitted free of daty, while on lead ore a duty of 1½ cents a pound is charged. As siver is much more valuable than lead, in proportion to built, a small quantity of that metal is the cres in which it is mixed with lead is sufficient to bring a large quantity of lead free falls the conarge quantity of lead free him the country.

The lead producers very naturally object to these treasury rulings, but their chief objection is on account of the fraud which these rulings permit. Major W. H. Williams, the special around of the treasury did partment, who has been investigating the question, says, in an interview in the Helbes-Desserut of the 18th inst., that shippers frequently throw a sufficient quantity of high-grade ores, in which alliver predending the consignments of cross in which lead is the chief ingredient in value to rule the general average him enough to admit the whole cargo free. Testimony has come from other sources showing that in some cases ores in which silver forms but the minor ingredient also pays the custom homes without paying duty. This importation is almost wholly from Mexico, and principally by railrout, In 188, 20,673 tons of lead was expected through Et Pare, all of it, practically speaking, containg in the free.

It's true, of course, says the Globs-Dome free.

It is true, of course, says the Glabs-Demo-crat, that the smetters of this country pro-fit by these imports, and that the smetting industry was largely built up-because of the rulings which made this importation possible. A change to the method of class-lifying by quantity instead of by value would undoubtedly injure the smelters as well as the international railroads, most of the stock of which is held by Americans. The interests of the lead miners, however, who outnumber both the smelters and the holders of stock of the railroads carrying these ores, should be taken into account. No one in this country dreamed, when the treasury ruling of 1880 was made, that the lead importation under it would reach anywhere near its present proportions. Consequently the damage which it has inflicted could not have been foreseen. It must be borne in mind that the people, at the ballet box last November, declared in favor of adequatio protection to workingmen—to lead miners as well as to iron and stool producers. The lead miners are certainly not protected under present regulations. A ruling in harmony with this command would make the mixed eliver and lead ores come under the designation of the metal leading in weight and quantity rather than in the metal predominating in value. This, too, would stop the frauda against the government which Major Williams mentions.

Development of electric power is still in its infancy. But it has made progress enough to indicate very clearly that it is destined to produce more changes in the fundatrial affairs and economic conditions of civilized life than have been produced hitherto by any agency of force that has been brought under control of man. The progress that has been made so far in turning electrical energy to the service of man made it certain that its use will become practically illimitable. Its possibilities are jet, and probably will runain for a long period, beyond human forcast.

— Oregonian.

The application of electricity to the arts and ences is no less marked than to the human stem. Dre. Darrin and Quinian has made the subject of electric and get-main may made the subject of electric treatment a study for years, and has "harmessed and driven" it to the great benefit of enforcing humanity, until his name has become a household word. That he does cure, is attested by the many cards humand us for pub-lication, a few of which we here submit.
